The first zest of public curiosity hav-ing been satisfied, speculation now turns on what share Roosevelt will take in an acute political situation within his own party, of which he had already been advised abroad by old associates who had carried him tidings. But on that score, speculation must rest unsatisfied. The Colonel had positively declared his intentions by wireless the night before,

"I shall have nothing to say whatever in the immediate future about politics," and he kept his word. Therefore, there was nothing in the only speech he made here that could be construed as applying specifically to this or that phase of immediate state or national issues.
